

IMMACULATE MISCONCEPTIONS

A MONOLOGUE PERFORMANCE By Stephen A. Schrum

Immaculate Misconceptions are the "simplistic explanations, half-truths, canonical misinterpretations, and outright disinformation" received from the mouths of teachers by Catholic school students.

June 16 and 17, 2006 at 8:00pm in the Ferguson Theater on the University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg Campus

In this monologue performance, Schrum tells his stories of Catholic grade school and high school, finding the humorous and serious aspects of the positive—and negative—role models of his youth. With references to secular events (such as the Kennedy Assassination and the NASA moon landing), as well as more religious happenings (the world's oldest nun giving sex advice and, of course, Vatican II and the Baltimore Catechism), Schrum seeks to discover how his Catholic school education shaped the college professor he is today.

More details are available on Schrum's website, MUSOFYR (pronounced "muse of fire,") at <http://www.musofyr.com/ImmacMisconcep/ImmacConcepInfo.html> and at dePrisco's website, <http://www.mindspeak.com>. Or, call Schrum at 724-836-7483, or email sas114@pitt.edu.

Featuring
Special Musical Guest:
Jeremy dePrisco
Performing original vocal and instrumental pieces on guitar and other instruments

Tickets (available at the door only): $8 Regular,
$4 Students/Seniors
$2 Pitt Students/ Staff/Faculty with current ID.

